on medium-range nuclear weapons parity, as displayed by recent proposal for equal number of warheads, and need to include british and french missiles as part of nato's arsenal. (6 min: polish 1300)

24 viktor tanin "in interest of european security," denouncing determination of u.s. administration and of nato to deploy nuclear medium range missiles in western europe, and pointing to chain reaction this would necessarily bring on part of warsaw pact countries. Warsaw pact, however, wants to avoid dangerous development, and therefore submitted series of disarmament proposals aimed at making europe free both of medium range nuclear missiles as well as of tactical nuclear weapons. time is running short. (6-5 min: german 1500 italian 1900 port 2000 finnish 1530)

25 vladimir yakovlev recalling that as early as 1946 soviet union proposed a nuclear ban and, since then, ever and again came forward with similar initiatives. western reactions have always been the same. they were negative, and they were accompanied by propaganda campaigns aimed at distorting soviet disarmament proposals, one of most recent examples for this negative attitude were statements by frg defense minister woerner to effect that french and british nuclear missiles cannot be included. woerner's statements must be regarded as deliberate misrepresentation of soviet positions, for example regarding issue of nuclear bombers. constructive negotiations cannot be carried on the basis of such intentional forgery. (6 min: german 1600)

26 excerpts of interview granted by paul warnke, former head of u.s. delegation at soviet-american salt negotiations, to spd paper vorwaerts, in wich he stated that president reagan does not attach great importance to an agreement on eurostrategical systems and welcomed andropov's proposal providing for parity of nuclear potentials.
